Later on in his speech, Mr. Churchill dealt with the land question, and, in the course of his remarks on the subject, insisted upon the prime necessity of the agricultural laborer receiving a just return for his work, and on the advisability of the establishment o fa wages

Undoubtedly, however, the most im portant subject with which Mr. Churchill dealt was that of armaments. After remarking that the expenditure on naval armaments was likely to be higher next year than ever before, he went on to point out that in spending these enormous sums of money the admiralty was industry, and the mercantile interests of only carrying out the decisions which Cawnpore, which is the headquarters of warning to the cabinet and the House of Commons that the expenses of next of Commerce is in favor of two mails there been an executive council with an year would be materially greater than per week, and impressed this view upon Indian member, no matter whether those of this year.

The expenditure on naval armaments had advanced £12,000,000 in ITALY DISCUSSES 10 years, but they ought to remember that, if the burden had increased, so had the means of supporting the burden.

He felt sure, he said, that if his audience were asked they would agree with him in describing the present naval expenditure as shocking and in every sense of the word utterly and entirely deplorable.

"Our relations with Germany," Mr Churchill said, amidst cheers, "have greatly improved without the loss of our friendship with other countries. The moment, therefore, is not unfavorable for taking up the friendly reference to the question of a naval holiday which is to be found in the German chancellor's speech. The proposal which I put forward in the name of his majesty's government for a naval holiday is quite

"Next year, apart from the Canadian ships or their equivalent, apart from anything that may be required by new developments in the Mediterranean, we are to lay down four great ships to the Germans' two. Now we say, while there is plenty of time, in all friendship and sincerity to our great neighbor Germany: 'If you will put off beginning your two ships for 12 months from the ordinary date when you would have begun them, we will put off beginning our four ships, in absolute good faith, for exactly the same period.'

That would mean that there would be a complete holiday for one year, so far as the building of big ships is concerned, between Great Britain and Germany. There would be a saving spread over three years of nearly £6,000,000 to Germany and of nearly £12,000,000 to this country, while the relative strength of the two countries would be absolutely unchanged.

"This is the proposal," Mr. Churchill said in conclusion, "which I make for the year 1914, or if it is thought 1914 is too near, then for 1915. I am quite Impervious," he added, "to the objections which will, no doubt, be raised by the great armament firms in this and other countries. They must be the servants and not the masters."

Mr. Lloyd-George's Land Reform Speech Criticized Before Glasgow Conservative Club

(Special to the Monitor)

GLASGOW, Scotland - The Glasgow onservative Club entertained the Scottist Unionist whips, Sir George Younger, M. P., and Captain Gilmour, M. P., at a miplimentary dinner recently. The Duke of Montrose, who presided, in proposing the toast of "Our Guests" said that Mr. Lloyd-George's recent speech on the land question had missed its mark. No Tory landlord would object to the general outline of Mr. Lloyd-George's ousing propositions. The attack from first to last seemed to be directed against the chancellor of the exchequer's colleagues in the government, many of whom were owners of large estates, and it would be the duty of the Unionists to place the chancellor's proposals before the public in their true perspective.

Sir George Younger, in his reply, referred to the coming by-election at Linlithgowshire and Wick, and declared that, from the Unionist view, their position there and all over Scotland was satisfactory. When the general election came, there would be, in his opinion, very surprising results as there was a strong ndercurrent of great dissatisfaction with the government.

Turning to the Irish question, Sir George Younger agreed that a great deal ught to be done to avoid, if possible, the danger of civil war in Ireland, but in the doing of it more than the Ulster ally, would desire to do everything possi- Takes it home and tries it The presentation of the suites fol- demands of each nation on its motor ble to avoid the appalling disaster which seemed to confront them, but they would prove loval to the cardinal principle which brought them together, and which r. was for the good of the whole empire.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE CLEAR IN BRUNSWICK CASE

(Special to the Monitor) BERLIN, Germany-The German crown prince has, in a letter to the imperial chancellor, expressed his regret that the contents of his private letter to that minister, concerning the throne of Brunswick, should have been made public.

Some portion of the press had put forward the incorrect notion that he had taken up an attitude in opposition to the Emperor on the subject of Prince Ernst August's accession to the throne of Brunswick. This idea, he characterizes as utterly false.

The crown prince desires it to be known that the imperial chancellor's letter in reply to his own, had the effect of clearing up the whole matter in his mind by giving him a correct view of the exact position of affairs.

Rates Report Is Big

Involved in Proposed Change in Manner of Making Returns on Business

COMPANIES OPPOSE

WASHINGTON-The interstate commerce commission now has under consid eration a question which on the surface appears to be merely clerical routine, but which, in fact, involves the fundamentals of the railroad rate-making process. That is the proposed reform in annual reports of the railroads, of the country.

About the 1st of October the commission, by its statistician, William J. Meyers, prepared and submitted to the railroads a tentative draft of the proposed new annual report form, and on Oct. 27 the entire commission sat at a hearing on this question. The railroads vigorously opposed the new plan on the grounds that compliance with its requirements would be expensive, in many respects impracticable and that much of the information sought would be of no value when obtained. Members of the commission, however, feel that the information asked in the report as proposed is essential to the systematic establihment of freight and passenger rates.

Three classes of information are sought by the commission in the annual reports of the roads; first, cost accounting and separation of freight and passenger charges: second, wage statistics; third. traffic statistics.

The courts have upheld the commission in basing rates upon costs and in order to arrive at equitable freight and passenger rates it is necessary to have in formation as to the proportion of operating expense attributable to those two branches of the business. Meats should not be judged by the different cuts but by the quality. If your butcher keeps good prime beef, the shoulder steaks, and in general all the lower-priced cuts of all meats, have more flavor and contain more nourishment than the cuts which are in such great demand. BATH APRON FOR MOTHER TO WEAR

THE bath apron for mother to wear while bathing baby is a necessity. The following pattern has been used and is a success. Buy one yard and a quarter of one yard wide oilcloth. Cut off the one-quarter yard and bind one of the long edges with white tape. Lay this at one end of the larger piece and bind them together, also binding on both sides. This leaves a pocket at the bottom. As oilcloth is too slippery to sew with the machine, lay the tape on the oilcloth and sew down with the machine, making three divisions in the pocket, to hold the toilet articles. Gather the upper edge and use wide tape to make a belt and strings. Sew four buttons on the belt in front. Make also a flannel apron with four buttonholes in the belt and button it on the oilcloth apron.-New York Sun.

PETTICOAT ON LINES OF SKIRT

Cut which gives the most satisfaction

NO PETTICOAT gives such perfect satisfaction as the one made on similar lines to those found in the skirt to be worn over it. This one can be cut in two or three pieces and, consequently, it means very few seams. It is without fulness over the hips and of just the width to fill present needs. It can be made of silk with a plaited frill or it can be made of silk with simply an under-faced edge. It can be made of cambric and the like with the lower edge embroidered or trimmed with a frill. The two-piece skirt includes only two seams, the three-piece skirt three seams. The latter is preferred only when narrow material is used. The plain skirt with embroidery shown in the small view is especially attractive. The treatment in the large view is well adapted to silk. For the medium size, the petticoat will require 21/2 yards of material 27, 36 or 44 inches wide, with 1% yards 27, 11/4 yards 36, ¾ yard 44 inches wide for the plaited frill, or 2½ yards of embroidery 6 inches wide for the frill as shown in the back view, 1% yards of insertion.

The pattern of the petticoat (8028) is cut in sizes from 22 to 30 inches waist measure. It can be bought at any May Manton agency, or will be sent by mail.

There is a great variety in shapes to choose from, and they are complete, already lined, and need only the addition of a simple trimming. For simplicity is in high favor just now.

A hat in velvet, with low round crown, and a soft brim lifting at the right, may be gracefully trimmed with a fancy ostrich feather mounted on the under brim. The important source of Pocatello's thriving activity is the location here of the large shop, plant and operating department of the Idaho and Montana divisions of the Oregon Short Line railroad. This corporation lately has added a concrete viaduct and subway to its improvements in Pocatello and now is rushing to completion a modern freight house, to be followed soon by a commodious passenger depot. The improvements contemplated by the Oregon Short line mean when completed, an expenditure of close to $1,000,000, The monthly payroll of the shops and operating departments amounts to $221,000.

Under irrigation the city is now tributary to considerable farming district, and the State Academy, which is rapidly developing into a State Technical Agricultural College, is situated here. Among Pocatello's public buildings are the court house, Y. M. C. A., auditorium, public library, three grammar schools, a high school and eight churches. Eightyfive thousand dollars has been appropriated by the government for a federal building to cost $200,000 when finished. Miles of concrete sidewalk, 20 blocks of paving and a fine sewerage system have been laid this year.

There are many organizations in Pocatello, prominent among which are 'the climate the year around.

Facsimile of manuscript of "The Star-Spangled Banner"

NEARLY every one knows who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner," but many persons do not know that the original manuscript is now in the possession of Henry Walters of Baltimore. Interest in the original is being renewed just at this time because of the agitation in Baltimore to preserve old Ft. McHenry in a manner worthy of the place over whose ramparts the stars and stripes waved through the perilous night of Sept. 13, 1814. The author, Francis Scott Key, a prisoner on board the British ship Minden. wrote the first lines that same night and completed the verses the next day on his way to Baltimore. A special reason for desiring immediate aid is evident in the present plan to make "The Star-Spangled Banner" centennial, to be observed in Baltimore next year, a national affair. The celebration will also commemorate the battle of North Point, the bombardment of Ft. McHenry and 100 years of Anglo-American peace.

REED PLAN FOR MONEY RESERVE IS CONSIDERED

Barry's plurality..... 28,455

WASHINGTON-Senator Reed today produced a new currency idea at the re-3 sumed sessions of the Senate banking and currency committee. He proposed to establish a bank reserve of 12 per cent, 4 per cent to be held by the banks, 4 per cent in 20 regional banks and 4 per cent in Washington, under the supervision of the federal reserve board. The latter fund would be further increased by the moneys of the government, mak-4 ing a reserve of about $400,000,000. HILADELPHIA—With eight of this city's museums and historie shrines entertaining each year close upon 2,500,000 visitors, it may be easily seen to lead every other city in the United States and to be entitled to rank as the greatest city in America for intellectual amusements. Even New York, which is second in the list, falls 650,000 below Philadelphia's total, while should New York be omitted from the count, the Quaker City would greet annually more guests in its great centers of learning and "educational entertainment" than all the rest of the country combined.

The bureau of city property recently has issued a statistical pamphlet, based upon figures included in the 1912 report of the federal commission of education of the interior department, which lists the number of visitors who, year by year, seek out the various larger museums of the United States. Only those institutions which have been able to de clare not less than 100,000 guests within their doors during the twelve-month closing Dec. 31 last, have been included in this compilation and this restriction has condensed the cities to an even dozen and the organizations themselves to 23. The list of the cities, in the order of their registered figures, reads as follows:

Experts for United States Devise Plan for Conserving Time in Elementary Grade

WASHINGTON-That there is a waste of at least two years in the present plan has endeavored to form a plan that would do away with the two-year loss.

The investigators propose that six years be assigned to the elementary school instead of eight as at present; that the high school period be for children from 12 to 18, divided into two parts, of four and two years each; that college work extend from 18 to 20, or 16 to 20, according to the method of distributing the last two secondary years; and that graduate or professiona! Stitches that can be Saved with a UTICA PLIER:

OES that water faucet or water pipe leak? - Does that umbrella need mending? -- Do you want to cut that wire? -- Does the sewing machine belt need mending?----Do you want to tighten or remove that screw?—Do you want to pull nails or tacks?—Do you want to remove that tack from the shoe?—Do the children's toys need repairing?—Do the table fork prongs need straightening?—Does that gas jet or pipe need tightening? - Does that chain need mending? - Do the kitchen utensils or household furniture need that attention that always keeps them in perfect order?

Do the thousand and one things happen in your home that you can repair easily and quickly with a UTICA PLIER, and without which in each case you require the services of a skilled mechanic at a cost many times that of the Plier?

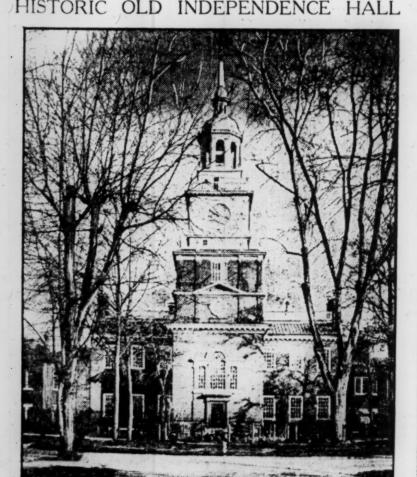

If you wanted to sweep your house and had no broom, you certainly would not use a hair brush. You'd buy a broom, wouldn't you? Then why spoil a fine pair of shears cutting a wire? Why use a piece of soap to stop a leaky gas jet? Why use a table knife to tighten or remove a screw, or a rag to stop a leaky water faucet, when a UTICA PLIER will do the work and do it right? And if you don't like the Plier, you can get your money back. It's just as essential for a housewife to have a UTICA PLIER with which to do good housekeeping, as it is for a mechanic to have UTICA PLIERS with which to show his skill.

No substitute is just as good as UTICA. > for industrial purposes, the power company decided to install an irrigation pumping plant delivering water to 6000 acres. The unit is covered by three ditches, of a total length of 26 miles. They are parallel to each other but on different elevations. The first is 70 feet above the level of the lake, the second 110 feet, and the third 150 feet. They are connected with the pumping station by three lines of barrel stave pipe, 36 inches in diameter, and from a quarter to more than a mile in length. The ditch heads, farmers' turnouts and checks are of concrete, while the flumes are of the latest design of galvanized, rustresisting iron.

The land owners signed contracts agreeing to take the water for a period of 32 years at a price of Il.75 an acre foot. From an acre foot to an acre foot and a half of water is required to grow crops, depending upon the soil.

SOLDIERS MAY HOLD CITY JOBS AT HONOLULU

First Deputy Attorney Weaver Renders Second Opinion Opening Civil Service to Enlisted Men

HONOLULU-Submitting a second legal opinion on the point of the eligibility of soldiers, residing here as enlisted men for more than a year and maintaining at the same time a technical residence elsewhere, for positions under the civil service, P. L. Weaver, first deputy city and county attorney, has cleared up the last doubts of the commissioners on the point, says the Star Bulletin.

By his opinion, the civil service will recognize as properly qualified applicants, so far as residence is concerned, soldiers who are discharged after being stationed here a year or more.

Mr. Weaver's opinion applies not only to civil service jobs, though it was written expressly for the civil service com-Nov. 15 mission. It applies to all city and county offices covered by the municipal act.

CHICAGO-Little change was noted last week in the general movement of freight over the western railroads. The usiness handled showed the same irregularity as during the previous week, some roads reflecting a larger tonnage while others showed a slight percentage of loss. On the whole, however, officials Because of this difficulty in placing were of the opinion that shipments of view of the adverse influences which are which would bring about an expanding condition. Several things which are now working against increased business in any direction are not only causing hesitation, but in some instances bringing about a state or disquietude, if not moderate distrust. These are the new tariff law, the agitation in connection with the currency bill and the regulations in connection with the income tax law which went into effect Nov. 1. There is so much confusion with regard to these factors, or influences, that a state of uncertainty exists in all directions. It is pointed out that as long as such a state of affairs exists, and with money rates firm in every locality, it need not be expected that the business situation will mprove until the governing factors have been removed.

For Voice Control

A good test of tone and breath control is to sing single notes on the vowel the tone, then decreasing until you end softly. The "crescendo" and "diminuendo" should be of equal duration. "six" and reach "10" with the same quantity of tone that you began with. Arpeggios should be practised lightly. They will give the voice flexibility and will in time extend the range. Never sing arpeggios heavily or loudly. The mental attitude should be one of joyousness and brightness. You will find that the results of the earlier exercises will help you here. Begin your arpeggios in your low voice, singing them up and then down, and endeavor to carry the light tones of the upper voice throughout the range.-Harold Milligan in Pictorial Re-

Bay State's Governor Faces a Real Opportunity

Nor even the fact that Massachusetts elects her Governor every year makes less than momentous the task the voters assume nor less than imposing that which the man elected confronts. It may be, indeed, that the frequency of the election serves to keep intimate the relation between Governor and people and to heighten the sense of responsibility. Certain it is that under the old constitution, which in the provisions for the highest office has undergone no essential change, the man who comes to the office takes upon himself an obligation that is hardly second to that of any public servant in the land. His responsibility for the right administration of the intricate and constantly extending interests of the state is direct and but slightly qualified by any checks placed upon him. In the directing of the legislative policy he has merely an advisory power, but recent years have developed a closer intimacy between the executive and the legislative branches and a more general looking to the Governor to develop state policy and even to propose the bills that will enact it.

To the governorship, as the laws define it and as custom has expanded it, the man chosen Tuesday comes with an almost unbounded opportunity for high service. Rare political conditions have carried him there with only a minority of the voters supporting him, but this fact is of the election and not of the office. He is to be Governor of Massachusetts, and without qualification of his responsibility any more than of his powers because six other candidates held in their combined vote a majority against him. The absence of issues at all controlling in the election goes to emphasize the personal nature of the choice. The new Governor is actually committed to nothing more definite than to administer his office, and to influence law-making, in the common interest. He cannot be factional, or even partizan, without missing the way to real

In the sobering moments, after the acclaim of his supporters over the victory and before he takes the ancient oath, there will be contemplation of an office that has not less than a sustained tradition of high faithfulness. Today may be too soon to counsel, but if a first word is permissible it is to the point that the standards of the past be regarded, that the wish to make over the state be not too freely indulged, that the spectacular be repressed and the essential emphasized, that the course of government be held to the forward movement but with avoidance of the experimental. The Governors of Massachusetts who have best honored their office have been those who have recognized least the claims of the partizans and resisted most the influence of other interests than those of the whole people. May the guidance of the traditions they have established be followed by the man who comes with a new hand to the serious business of presiding over the affairs of the state.

New York Bus Riding and

It is pleasant to read that the New York bus lines are holding their own and perhaps doing something better than this. There has always existed in American cities a considerable sentiment in favor of the bus, if only the bus could be brought to the point of efficiency where people in a moderate hurry might use it. New York and Boston and Philadelphia and Baltimore and other American cities used to have well-patronized bus

THE address delivered a few days ago by Commissioner Walter E. Ranger of the Providence public schools, before the institute of instruction of the Rhode Island normal school, might, in a sense, be taken as an echo of similar addresses recently delivered in different parts of the middle western United States. It is not intended to convey here the idea that Commissioner Ranger presented nothing new in relation to his subject, for the contrary is the case. He approached the question of providing better instruction for rural children from an angle entirely his own. Necessarily, the rural school question must not only be approached but handled in the East on lines different from those found to be adequate and satisfying in the West. The East-the New England East in great part at least, and this applies peculiarly to Rhode Island—is populous, sometimes to the point of congestion, whereas the West, comparatively, is but thinly settled. Generally speaking the problems of rural education in the two sections are wide apart, yet in some particulars the groundwork of solution is practically the same.

Commissioner Ranger might have been talking as effectively for Indiana, Kansas or Oregon as for Rhode Island when he took the position that as the rural schools were conducted so would the country in which they are located keep step with the times. The pupils of the rural schools of today, in a majority of cases, will be the men and women of the farms of America tomorrow. The whole question of a return to the soil, of agricultural contentment and efficiency, of production equal to consumption, hinges upon the training of the country youth. Of equally wide application were Commissioner Ranger's remarks touching upon the establishment of social centers in the rural districts. He advised the teachers to get in closer touch with the home life of the pupils, to enter heartily into their pleasures, to look to their reading matter, and to make their hours in and out of the school room count for something worth while every day.

He rightly called attention also to another and a very important point, namely, the advantage the rural teacher enjoys. He held, for instance, that the rural school gives teachers the widest experience in grade work, since they must be constantly active and studious in preparing themselves for all calls and questions, and his closing recommendation that girls be encouraged to become teachers so that the needs of the rural schools might always be readily supplied rounded out an address well worthy of a very important topic.

Now that it is all over in New York city, it is interesting to consider how clearly the Mitchel campaign there reechoed the Bryan note in the Baltimore convention.

San Francisco

Working Out

Girl's Wage

Problem

IT WOULD seem from the interesting statement of conditions affecting girl employees in San Francisco department stores, made for the benefit of Monitor readers by Mrs. Mary V. Greene of that city, that locality, after all, has little bearing upon the industrial situa-tion so far as the United States is concerned. Geographically, continental extremes are reached in comparisons between the Pacific and the Atlantic coasts; economically, or in so far as labor is in question, the East and West, the North and South, appear to be on common ground. Especially so as regards the large cities, the centers of population and activity. That which is simple in one section is simple in all; that which is complex in one section is complex in all. Mrs, Greene finds some differences between San Francisco and the East in the character and condition of department store girl labor, but they are seen to be but slight. They are not wide enough, at all events, to be seriously considered in discussing the subject in its larger aspects.

If the East has taken any advanced steps, there is nothing to prevent the West from following its lead, and vice versa. Mrs. Greene is in the East, indeed, to discover what it has accomplished toward the solution of the girl labor problem with the view of adopting the best ideas in the West. On the same principle, the East doubtless will be quick to apply, experimentally at least, any improvements of the same character which Mrs. Greene reveals to that section. One of these, of which she has spoken freely, calls for special attention. This is the automatic system of increasing salaries. She explains that employees possessed of abundant assurance felt no hesitancy in applying for increases under the old system, while the more timid employee, whose work was perhaps far superior, might not have been courageous enough to ask for what was really due. This worked plainly toward injustice. Now, "every six months employees' cards are sent to the office for inspection. They have been carefully marked during the period with their percentage of sales, general efficiency, loyalty and other necessary information, their advancement is made accordingly and they receive equal remuneration according to the efficiency of their work."

Assuming that the standard of the employing concern is high and that the basis of remuneration is equitable to begin with, this automatic method of determining compensation according to demonstrated efficiency should work out satisfactorily for all parties concerned. It should be said in this connection, however, for the benefit of the country at large, that with the enforcement of its new minimum wage law next spring, California in this particular will be leaving little to mere assumption.

Plans for Next Hague Conference

THE formal initiative in calling each of the Hague conferences came from Russia, but to those who know the inner history of the second conference it is understood that a stimulus to action came from Washington. The fact that already articles casting doubts on the likelihood of a third conference are appearing in the press and that criticism of the make-up of the American committee to arrange the program for a third conference is finding public expression shows that during coming months the serious issue involved in continuance or lapse of the international gathering is to be brought to the attention of the American public. Indeed it may be taken for granted that the same organized agencies that have done so much to shape public opinion and governmental action favorable to participation in prior conferences, will from this time on be busy in educating the American constituency to the thought that of course a third conference is to be held.

The only practical question now is how far the new administration will go in aiding in the process and how prompt it will be in sensing the popular mood favorable to renewal of international negotiations. Most natural of course is the assumption that Secretary of State Bryan, with his record as a foe of militarism and as champion of conciliation and arbitration, will be found willing to supplement the program laid down by a predecessor of his of the eminence of Secretary Root.

The gravity of domestic problems and the serious possibilities involved in prolonged strained relations between the United States and Mexico, should not divert citizens or responsible officials of the United States from attention to such details of procedure as will align the United States among the powers favoring a third Hague conference.

MRS. J. BORDEN HARRIMAN is the only woman member of the new industrial relations commission, and she is to be resident member in Washington of this bureau. President Wilson is said to be concerned that the commission shall keep well in view the human side of the economic questions it shall be called upon to deal with. In this particular, judging from a published interview with the lady, he is going to have an active and sympathetic ally in Mrs. Harriman. Appreciating the fact that she is likely to learn a great deal more regarding the duties of her office by actual experience than she knows now, she is nevertheless determined to cherish certain theories and to cling through thick and thin to certain ideals.

So far as she is concerned at least, the effort will be to obtain from brief and concise reports, rather than volumes of testimony, the data required for working purposes. Then it is her conviction that the commission should deal as little with statistics and as much with visible conditions as possible. Environment is to have a prominent place in the consideration of the commission, always with a view to its improvement, rather than with the purpose of making lengthy reports about it. It will not be difficult for any social reformer to meet her half way here. We know enough about things that ought to be corrected. We have had inquiries enough into them. We are plentifully supplied with statistical information regarding them. To put the matter into homely phrase, the thing to do is to do something.

With regard to the entire social problem, the idea has been not to do something in the light of what we already know, but to learn something more about the abuse or the evil that calls loudly for correction. Mrs. Harriman says her aim will be to work toward the uplifting of the industrial centers and the industrial workers upon data already at hand. In this she may depend upon the sympathy and support of millions of right-thinking people. The country knows enough and more than enough of the distress and misery and hardship and injustice that have fastened themselves upon industrial life. What the country wants is the immediate application of remedies and unremitting persistence in their application.

News comes from Washington to the effect that the sale of interchangeable mileage books, with the requirement that the coupons be exchanged for tickets before a journey is begun, has been held by the interstate commerce commission to be neither discriminatory nor a violation of law. This is encouraging. Some day in the United States there may be universal mileage, good on any road, at any time, until the last mile is used.

It is estimated that four days will be required to pass the American fleet through the Panama canal. If, when the pageant starts, those in the back row are patient, the chances are that they will be able to get into the front row before it ends.

THE principal islands of the Hawaiian group appear to be vying with each other, though in a singularly friendly way, in the matter of good road construction. For instance, the engineer of Kauai does not hesitate to praise the good roads of Oahu in public addresses at Honolulu. On the other hand, Hawaii proper is disposed to encourage, with a large measure of commendation, the highway construction going on in all parts of the possession. With regard to the island of Oahu the Star-Bulletin of Honolulu says far greater difficulties have to be overcome than is the case with Kauai, but that, nevertheless, both as regards building and maintenance Oahu roadways are coming on finely. Indeed, there is evidence of a pride in insular progress throughout the group that is well worthy of emulation elsewhere.

Progress in road building in the Hawaiian islands has been confined practically to the period of American occupation. Before that, the crudest roads or trails afforded all that the islands had to depend upon in inland transportation. The Hawaiians were always, of course, expert boatmen. There are now many fine macadamized roads into the mountain districts, and provision is carefully made for the maintenance of every new road constructed. One little reference in a report of a meeting in the newspaper named serves to illustrate the general attitude of the public. J. H. Morangne is the county engineer of Kauai, and we are told that he prepared a very interesting paper read before the convention on the subject of "How Kauai Has Made Her Famous Good Roads." "To him," it is added, "is given much of the credit for the fine roads there, for as the engineer of the county they come directly under his jurisdiction." The wholesome public sentiment revealed in this appreciation will no doubt make eventually for even better things than good roads in Hawaii.

THE influence of a change in the American tariff was felt in Canada even before the new act went into effect. For example, the Dominion exported to Great Britain in September, 1912, cattle 'to the value of $700,000. Anticipating the demand from the South under the new tariff, the exports of cattle from the Dominion to Great Britain in September, 1913, fell to $180,000. Canada continues to wish that its cattle exports to the United States were not quite so large.

THERE seems to be nothing unreasonable in the demand that the date of laying be put upon the egg or that it be stamped there indelibly. Egg eaters are now paying for the right to share equitably in the secrets of poultrymen, cold storage people and retailers.

ALL too common is the circumstance that men regret after an election many things they were eager to say, and did say, before an election. And yet there is no reason why men subject to compunction should ever forget the Golden Rule.

AFTER the figurative reference made by the author of the administration currency bill to the measure proposed by the President of the National City Bank, Mr. Vanderlip will find it less difficult than ever to see through Mr. Glass.

Mrs. Pankhurst did not know, of course, that she was going to appear in the United States at a time when interest was centered in male rather than in female suffrage.
